

Julius Johnson, DNP, RN, FNP-BC

- Dr. Julius Johnson was born and raised in Brooklyn, NY in the Brownsville and Crown Heights neighborhoods. He attended Clara Barton High School for health professionals while starring in football for the Brooklyn Skyhawks. He received his Bachelor of Science with a major in nursing from Binghamton University in 2005, a Master of Science with a major in family nurse practitioner from Binghamton University in 2009, and a Doctor of Nursing Practice from the University of Miami in 2016.
- Dr. Johnson currently specializes in home based primary care, transitional care, and transformational community intervention projects. He has spent the past 13 years serving underserved communities and reducing hospital rates for at risk populations.
- Dr. Johnson is a founding member of the Greater New York City Black Nurses Association and currently serves as its president.
- He is also the founding president of the Omega Nu chapter of Sigma Theta Tau international honor society at Long Island University Brooklyn where he serves as an associate professor, chair of faculty affairs, and the director of the family nurse practitioner program at Long Island University – Brooklyn School of Nursing.
- In 2018, Dr. Johnson was recognized as one of the National Black Nurses Association's 40 under 40 rising stars. In 2021, he was awarded the Trailblazer Award by the National Black Nurses Association. In 2022, Dr. Johnson was inducted as a fellow into the American Association of Nurse Practitioners
- In his spare time, he serves as the defensive coordinator of the Brooklyn Skyhawks who are the current, back-to-back, 12 & under defending champions of the New York City youth football league.