

NBNA's Population Health Committee presents:

“The Essentials of Population Health for Nurses and other Health Care Professionals”

Tuesday, July 28, 2020

2:00 PM – 3:00 PM EST | 1:00 PM – 2:00 PM CST

Population health is a combination of care activities that focuses on promotion, prevention, treatment and maintenance of health to prevent disease and illness for specific groups. This webinar will explore how a population health care focus can improve overall health care.

In addition, the webinar will define population health and its distinguishing components; describe the unique implications in providing health care with the population health focus; highlight the advantages in providing population health care for the minority community and propose suggested population health strategies that could be implemented in the workplace.

The expert panel includes:

- Carol Neil, PhD, RN, Florida State College at Jacksonville and Chair of the Population Health Committee
- Pamela H. Bryant, DNP, CRNP-PC/AC, Assistant Professor Pediatric Primary Care Specialty Track Coordinator; Family/Community and Health Systems, University of Alabama at Birmingham, School of Nursing
- Angela Adjetey Appiah, MSN, MPH, MA, RN, COA, FAACM, Assistant Vice President Oncology Services, Hackensack Meridian Health, Mountainside Medical Center.
